TEXT: Black Americans, by Alphonso Pinkney. New Jersey: Prentice Hall Publishers, 2000.

OFFICIAL COURSE DESCRIPTION: This course is intended to provide students with a thorough understanding of the development of cultures among racial groups as part of Western Civilization. Through a sociological assessment of the origins of culture and ethnicity, particular attention will be given to the ways race and culture intersect to provide styles, practices and patterns of living for individuals in contemporary society.

COURSE GOALS/OBJECTIVES: The goal of this course is to present a brief but complete assessment of the lives of African Americans in the United States from a sociological point of view. It is multi-disciplinary in its coverage of anthropology, history, economics, political science, and other areas relevant to the Black Experience in America.

By the end of the semester, each student should be able to (1) demonstrate a basic knowledge of the terms, concepts, theories and experiences which are fundamental to a better understanding of race and culture, (2) demonstrate an understanding of the history, culture and unique and similar experiences of different culture groups in the United States, and (3) demonstrate an attitude of respect for and tolerance toward racial and cultural differences.

CLASS FORMAT: Class time will be spent largely in a lecture/discussion setting. During some class time, class activities (e.g., literature review, data gathering, report writing) will require students to meet within a group framework outside of the classroom.

CLASS ACTIVITY: The class will engage in academic projects (i.e., term paper or article reviews) designed to provide evidence of the integration and application of work in research methods and sociological theories. The project/term paper will be a cooperative/group activity. In this class, as in most of real life, projects require cooperation and the ability to work with others, to respond critically but constructively to others' ideas, to present your own ideas persuasively but not defensively, and to make sure the work you do is usable by others.

READING MATERIALS FOR GROUP PROJECT: Students will determine what reading materials are needed to complete the class project/term paper. The class project or term paper will provide students the opportunity to demonstrate a process of disciplined inquiry (DI). All assignments must be typed and double-spaced in no smaller than 10-point type. For detailed information about term paper or manuscript preparation, visit the NOTICE TO CONTRIBUTORS section of one of the following ASA journal: American Journal of Sociology, Journal of Black Studies, Social Forces, Social Problems, Social Psychology Quarterly, Sociological Quarterly, Sociological Spectrum.

PROBATION: In the unlikely event of non-participation or inadequate participation by a member of the group (e.g., a group member routinely missing meetings, contributing nothing or irrelevant materials to the project), the remaining group members may place the non-contributing group member on probation. If a group member is placed on probation, she/he will receive no credit for the group project. Also, when placing a member on probation, the group should establish a set of guidelines for re-admissions.

FINAL GRADE: The final grade will be based on 300 point opportunities: three 90 point exams and 30 points in class activities (article reviews or group project). Letter grades will be assigned according to the following grading system/scale:

Grade	Points	(%)	Grade	Points	(%)
A	282+		C	222-230	74-76
A-	273-281	91-93	C-	213-221	71-73
B+	261-272	87-90	D+	201-212	67-70
B	252-260	84-86	D	192-200	64-66
B-	243-251	81-83	D-	183-191	61-63
C+	231-242	77-80	F	000-182	00-60

Test questions will come from class lectures and assigned readings. Each student is expected to attend class and participate in class discussions. When absence from class is necessary, the student is responsible for making arrangements with the professor concerning any missed lectures or readings (see, for example, the University of Georgia Schedule of Classes Fall 2008 for information about class attendance). Also, each student is expected to do his/her own work (under no circumstances will cheating be tolerated). Finally, any student who believes he/she has been graded unfairly or discriminated against may take the necessary steps to resolve the situation.

Disciplined Inquiry is an experience requirement intended to engage students in actively developing their ability and desire to analyze, evaluate and communicate complex material and positions. DI will enhance the following skills:

- Critical Thinking (objective and subjective), through a variety of approaches in which students investigate arguments, engage in research, gather data, perform qualitative and quantitative analysis, and assess conclusions.
- Writing (formal and informal), on which the instructor comments, used to explore substantial problems in the subject area and report the results of critical and creative thinking.

- Oral Expression in the classroom through discussion, group and individual reports, and other activities that provide students opportunities to share creative work, describe research, or explore important issues.
- Analysis of Controversies concerning the subject matter of the course in which students investigate concepts and hypotheses open to question.
- Exploration of Assumptions underlying beliefs and concepts relevant to course content and of processes for examining those assumptions, so that students understand and establish control over those ideas they bring to their study of subject matter.
- Inquiry through Course Content into the Origins, Bases and Consequences of Intellectual Bias through which students will understand the particular perspective on the world employed in the academic discipline of the course.
- Consideration of Human Diversity appropriate to the subject matter of the course so that students can explore the way in which cultural differences shape conceptions about the subject matter and discern the intellectual and pragmatic effects on human groups of the subject matter and ideas related to it.

Department of Sociology
The University of Georgia

All students should know that the Department of Sociology has a Human Rights Committee for the resolution of student grievances. Any student registered for a sociology course at the University of Georgia who feels that he or she has not been treated in a fair or professional manner by an instructor is advised to follow these procedures:

- (1) The student should discuss his or her problems with the instructor of the course, unless extenuating circumstances prohibit this.
- (2) If that discussion does not resolve the grievance, the student should then discuss the problem with the Head of the Sociology Department.
- (3) If that discussion does not resolve the grievance to the student's satisfaction, the student may request the activation of the Human Rights Committee by submitting a letter to the Chair of the Human Rights Committee, Department of Sociology, University of Georgia.

The Human Rights Committee will have the responsibility of investigating all charges in accordance with procedures on file at the Sociology offices, copies of which are available to students. The Committee will also have the responsibility of making recommendations in writing to the Head, copies of which will be made available to the student complainant and the instructor involved. The Department Head will review the recommendations, and make a decision, in writing, with copies to the student complainant and the instructor involved. Any appeal of that decision must be to the Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.
